Brompton wins Thomson Reuters Lipper multi-asset investment award

Brompton Asset Management is delighted to have won the 2018 Thomson Reuters Lipper UK small group award in the mixed assets class.

This award recognises the achievements of Brompton's specialist multi-asset investment team led by Gillian Lakin, the chief investment officer, who has managed the EF Brompton Multi-Manager OEIC range since its launch in 2012, delivering strong risk-adjusted returns over multiple years.

Brompton specialises in managing multi-asset portfolios on behalf of financial intermediaries, charities, mutual fund investors and private clients. Brompton focusses on developing close partnerships with strategic intermediary partners who seek an investment manager that can help them best deliver a centralised investment service for their clients.

Gillian Lakin says: "Our emphasis on dynamic asset allocation, active fund selection and integrated management of investment risk has delivered for our clients. It is pleasing that the investment team members, who include fund manager Sean Standen, head of fund selection David Hedderwick, performance and risk analyst Kevin Walker and Lewis Lawrence, have been recognised with this award."

John Duffield, Brompton's senior partner says: "Delivering good risk-adjusted returns for investors is key for clients and their advisers. This award recognises the consistent delivery of good investment returns by Gill and her team on behalf of clients."
